

Cleaning Tips For a New Year's Eve Party

By Momentum Janitorial

Use Disposable Dishware

- Don't use your household plates for serving food at the party.
- Get some inexpensive and disposable paper or plastic plates to avoid washing dishes after the party gets over.
- You will find many attractive, recyclable and disposable dishware. Select the one that suits your party theme.

Keep Garbage Cans at Convenient Places

- Before the party starts, keep garbage cans at places where visitors can find them easily.
- Once the party starts, it will be easier for your guests to dispose off dishware or other wastes.
- Guests can pile up messes if they don't find any place to dispose off their garbage.

Pack Leftovers for Your Guests

- After the party, pack leftover treats into plastic baggies or brown paper bags and give them to your guests.
- Sending your guests with doggy bags is the best way to eliminate leftovers, and also saves you from the hassle of storing food.

Put Leftover Food in the Fridge

- If you will leave the leftover food out all night, it will help bacteria to grow and you'll have to throw the food.
- Putting the food in the fridge helps it stay fresher for a longer time. So you don't need to cook the next day!

Re-cork or Seal Open Wine Bottles

- If you have open wine bottles that are not completely emptied, re-cork or seal them.
- If you can't find the cork, cover the top using some cling film to keep air out of the bottle so that it can taste fresh.

Focus on the Urgent Matters

- After the party ends, focus on the urgent matters right away.
- Pack leftover food and drinks or store them in the fridge, wash dishware (or keep them in the dishwasher), pre-treat stains, keep away trash and recycling materials and gather up all the party items like decorations in one area to put them away later on.

Finishing Touches

- Once you have done all the urgent tasks, complete the cleaning by vacuuming, sweeping, and polishing windows and mirrors to give your home a refreshed look.
- You'll feel much better the next morning when you will find your home neat and clean after the party mess.
- You can now sit back, relax, and make some New Year's resolutions!
